

 Inklings®

A program to support babies showing early social and communication differences in South Australia

Inklings is a program to support babies aged 6-18 months who are showing early differences in their social interaction and communication development.

Backed by decades of rigorous scientific research, Inklings uses short videos of a caregiver interacting with their baby to help them to better understand the different ways that their baby communicates.

To make an enquiry or to see if your baby is eligible for Inklings, simply scan the QR code or contact:

P: 1300 030 655

E: inklings@thekids.org.au

W: inklings.org.au

Inklings Program in SA

Inklings can be delivered in a variety of locations including telehealth, and may depend on the location of your practitioner.

Inklings in SA is funded by the Australian Government Department of Social Services and South Australian Government.

There is no out-of-pocket expense for eligible families participating in Inklings in SA

